MYSTERIOUS WITNESS ENTERS PROBE OF MURDER

DETECTIVE HOPING TO IDENTIFY GREEK AS MELLETT SLAYER

Slater Takes Canton Man To Pittsburgh To See Psilias

PITTSBURGH, Pa., July 21.—Hope of connecting "George The Greek" Psilias with the murder of Don R. Mellett, Canton publisher, hangs on the opinion of a mysterious witness who accompanied Ora Slater, special detective here last night.

The possibility that Psilias may obtain an automatic release from the custody of local authorities due to a provision in the Pennsylvania law which prohibits the holding of a suspect for more than five days, caused considerable anxiety.

In such event, Canton investigators planned to seek his re-arrest on the Ohio warrants if the circumstances of the present inquiry justify his further detention.

Lieut. Peter Connors of the homicide squad assigned to trace the movements of Psilias, is reported to have established that the Greek reached Warren, Ohio, about 11:30 a. m. the day of the murder.

Should this discovery be confirmed by the failure of Detective Slater's mysterious witness to identify Psilias as one of the persons seen lurking near the home of Mellett on the night of the murder, local authorities confess they will have to seek other clues in the case.

CANTON, July 21.—Investigators into the murder of Don R. Mellett, Canton publisher after a night of frenzied activity here were returning to Pittsburgh today for a second attempt to identify "George The Greek" Psilias as one of the men seen loitering near Mellett's home the night of the crime.

Pennsylvania law which provides that no one shall be allowed to see a prisoner in whose behalf habeas corpus proceedings are pending, blocked yesterday's effort to identify Psilias. The hearing is to be held in Pittsburgh today.

Detective Ora Slater in charge of the hunt for Mellett's assassin and County Prosecutor C. B. McClintock, with Henry DeVille, the witness who identified a newspaper picture of Psilias, left here early this morning.

In event the Greek's alibi is proven false by De Ville's identification, the Pittsburgh court could be asked to detain the prisoner three days more on suspicion. At the end of that time unless a charge of murder was placed against him, Psilias would be automatically freed.

The Greek's alibi is expected to stand up in court.

The Canton vice lieutenant whose visit to Psilias shortly before Mellett was murdered, called attention of investigators to the Greek, was questioned by police but released. He said the visit was a casual call.

A fresh effort to force the fight on the city civil service commission and open the way for changes in the police department was made yesterday by Judge H. C. Pontus, former attorney for Mellett. He asked hearing on a motion to set aside the temporary injunction restraining the mayor from removing two members of the commission. The court refused the motion but agreed to bring in an outside judge to set a date for the hearing some time today.

FATHER DROWNS IN SAVING DAUGHTER

DAYTON, O., July 21.—Earl Albin, 12 St. Marys St., drowned in the old Miami River channel, near Phillip's bathing pool, North Dayton, last night in an effort to rescue his 11-year-old daughter, Phyllis, who was bathing in the channel.

The girl was taken from the water and revived half an hour later in a hospital. She will recover.

Early last night, Albin took his daughter, his son Emerson, 6, and another girl, Jewel Springfield, 10, to the old channel for bathing. He had fastened the two girls to a chain which he held at the end of a stick, to keep them above water.

The Springfield girl freed herself from the chain to swim to shore when the other girl became frightened and slipped loose. Her father plunged into the water when his daughter sank.

Screams of the other children drew John Phillips, 24, proprietor of the bathing pool, to the scene and he rescued the girl, who was placed in an automobile and started for the hospital.

Bystanders were unaware the girl's father was in the water for half an hour. His body was recovered after a brief search.

By Aimee Semple McPherson, Pastor, Angelus Temple, (Written for the United Press)

LOS ANGELES, July 21.—Regardless of the findings of the official investigation of my unfortunate experience with abductors, there can be only one ultimate result—vindication of my cause and the triumph of evangelism.

Throughout history the progress of religion has been impeded by the skeptics and by those jealous of the power of righteousness. This entire affair I am convinced, was the work of the enemies of Angelus Temple, and the four-square gospel.

Jealous of the success of a mighty crusade, based on a simple old-fashioned faith in the Bible, my enemies have engineered one of the most cunning and infamous plots ever perpetrated on a public character.

VICTIM OF SHOOTING DIES LATE TUESDAY

Charles Andrews Succumbs at City Hospital, Springfield—Son, Vernon Andrews, Sought For Murder

Greene and Clark County authorities are spreading a net for the capture of Vernon Andrews, 26, farm hand on the H. S. Woosley farm, near Selma, following the death of his father, Charles Andrews, 65, at Springfield City Hospital late Tuesday.

The elder Andrews died from blood poisoning setting in from gunshot wounds alleged to have been inflicted by his son at the Woosley farm as the aftermath of a quarrel between the father and son last Sunday.

After firing point blank at his father once with a shot gun, Andrews leaped into an automobile, and with his family, escaped toward Dayton by way of Cedarville and Xenia.

Arrest of the younger man is expected momentarily by Clark County officials. Greene County authorities are also redoubling their efforts to find the slayer.

Fresh clues have been unearthed and as the alleged assassin is now believed to be hiding in the southern part of the state, a net is being spread for him. If arrested, a charge of first degree murder may be placed against him.

The shooting occurred when the son interrupted a chat between his father and Woosley. The latter was the sole eye witness of the tragedy. The son is said to have approached within twenty feet of the elder Andrews and fired once without warning, the entire load entering the left side and lower abdomen.

Woosley prevented him from firing again and struggled with him. Throwing off his would-be captor, the youth escaped with his wife and children in an auto.

His movements were traced as far as Cedarville where the trail suddenly ended.

Funeral services for Andrews have not been arranged for pending the return of a verdict in the death by Theodore Schaefer, Clark County coroner.

BORDER PATROLMEN APPOINTED TO HELP CHECK SMUGGLING

WASHINGTON, July 21.—The treasury department announced today that 235 additional border patrolmen have been appointed, bringing to 545 the federal border police force which battles the smuggling of liquor, narcotics and merchandise into the United States.

Frank Dow, acting dry czar, said the reinforcements would make "a wall of arms and men" around the entire border to prevent customs law violations. Revenues collected by the patrol will virtually pay the salary and expense of the organization, he predicted.

Forty-five patrolmen were assigned to the Ohio-Michigan district because of the great liquor traffic on the Great Lakes and along the Detroit river.

To prevent smuggling from Mexico Dow assigned ten officers to Galveston, Texas and three to San Antonio.

The new officers will be equipped with automobiles along land stations and motorboats were assigned to waterfront duty. Equipment will be added to the force of machines and boats taken from bootleggers and smugglers.

JURY UNABLE TO FIND INDICTMENT

LOS ANGELES, Cal., July 21.—Sufficient evidence has not been found to warrant an indictment in the alleged kidnapping of Aimee Semple McPherson, evangelist, the county grand jury declared in a report to Superior Judge Keetch.

The report stated: "The grand jury has had presented to it for consideration the evidence in the alleged kidnapping of Aimee Semple McPherson, and find there is insufficient evidence to warrant an indictment."

When the case was submitted to the grand jury, District Attorney Asa L. Keyes instructed the jurors on the law and left them blank indictments against three persons, two men and a woman, alleged by the evangelist to have abducted her one of them being known to her as "Steve" while the woman was called "Rose."

With these indictments before them, the report was interpreted as failure to substantiate the story of Mrs. McPherson.

At Thursday's weekly baptismal service, 136 were immersed. Hundreds of students are in training for evangelistic and foreign mission work.

The great revival gains impetus and is going full speed ahead. The details of my kidnapping and escape have been related many times now, both from the pulpit and to the officials. There can be no deviation from the facts. There is but one story and that is the truth as I have told it.

There is no malice toward those who have persecuted me since my return. Ultimately their accusations and innuendoes will be stilled. Until then we shall carry on as before, with the aid of the renewed confidence and faith of our followers who refuse to be shaken by gossip and ill-founded accusation of the scoffers and enemies of evangelism.

At Thursday's weekly baptismal service, 136 were immersed. Hundreds of students are in training for evangelistic and foreign mission work.

PARISIANS DRAW MONEY FROM BANKS WHILE FRANC SLUMPS

Crowds Await Opening Of Bank Of Paris—Herriot Government Plans Moves To Halt Decline—Standard Drops Again

PARIS, July 21.—As Premier Herriot prepared to go before the French parliament today with the ministerial declaration in which he outlines plans of his government to halt the collapse of the franc, Parisians were hurriedly withdrawing their money from banks to employ it in some fashion by which they could retain its value.

Crowds were camped before the doors of the Bank of Paris this morning waiting for the institution to open, so that they might remove their funds.

The franc slumped to a new low record today, opening at 242 to the pound and 49.80 to the dollar.

Facing a hostile parliament and a fiscal crisis which has overthrown government after government, Herriot will make his ministerial declaration simultaneously to the chamber and senate.

Finance Minister Anatole De Monzie was reported to be working on the financial plan of the new government, the factor by which Herriot will stand or fall.

Meanwhile a non-partisan republican group for "public safety" composed of deputies, is living formed with the intention of forcing Herriot to do its bidding in the efforts to save France from complete financial disaster.

AMERICA "SHYLOCK" OF NATIONS CHARGED

LONDON, July 21.—America's position on war debts came under fire in the house of commons last night when outspoken resentment against the United States featured the debate.

By inference, America was described as the "shylock of nations" by speakers in the debate in which Sir Phillip Snowden, former chancellor of the exchequer, Hilton Young, who lost an arm in the raid on Zebrugg and other leaders took part.

Winston Churchill, chancellor of the exchequer commented strongly on the recent statement ascribed to Secretary of the Treasury Andrew Mellon that England borrowed a large proportion of its present debt from America for purely commercial purposes.

"The complete misapprehension of the facts is so serious," he said in referring to the statement, "that it makes me almost doubt the authenticity of the statement."

"All loans made by the United States to the allies were by an act of congress, specifically limited to the purpose of prosecuting the war."

DEATHS FOLLOW IN WAKE OF HEAT WAVE IN CENTRAL STATES

Many Overcome In Ohio—Drownings Take Victims

Thunderstorms may bring relief to the heat stricken states of Ohio, Kentucky and West Virginia this afternoon or tonight, the U. S. weather bureau here announced today. Not since 1878 when the mercury soared to 104 has such an intense wave gripped the three states, leaving thousands of sufferers fairly gasping for breath.

As thousands of persons flocked to the beaches, numerous drownings were reported.

Two deaths directly attributable to the heat occurred in Cleveland. One of the victims, Edwin C. Brown, 62, collapsed and died from the heat.

At Manchester, Ohio, William Parr, a farmer died from sunstroke while at Wellington, another farmer collapsed and died while pitching hay.

Prostrations were reported from almost every section.

Another drowning occurred at Minster, Ohio, where Henry Melchart, 11, drowned in the Fort Loramie reservoir. Two companions stood by helplessly.

Oscar Smith, 30, collapsed while enroute from Hamilton to Cincinnati in a bus.

At Gloucester, Ohio, the heat became so torrid a gasoline tank exploded. Harold Hawk, a truck driver, was seriously burned.

The first toll of the year in Bowling Green, Ohio, was recorded when Mrs. William Potes, 67, collapsed and died. Temperatures of 95 were registered in that area.

Heat crazed dogs ran amuck in several cities. In Cleveland mad dogs bit three persons.

XENIANS PROMISED RELIEF FROM HEAT

The much-heralded relief from the tropical temperature which has gripped Xenia for the past three days, was in sight Wednesday and according to the weather bureau is due to arrive sometime in the afternoon or evening.

It will take the form of thunderstorms and showers with accompanying cooling weather dissipating the torturing, sweltering, sizzling heat that has sent the mercury soaring far above the ninety degree mark for new heat records the past two days.

The torrid wave splintered several records of long standing Tuesday when registrations of ninety-six and ninety-seven degrees were shown.

Relief is predicted generally for Ohio by the Washington forecast of thunderstorms and showers, with cooler weather and continued fair and cooler Thursday.

The break in the heat wave was not apparent Wednesday morning for a blistering and merciless sun shown down brightly out of a cloudless sky.

No cases of heat prostrations in Xenia have been reported.

COLORED BAPTIST WORKERS AT STATE CONVENTION IN XENIA

One hundred and sixty-nine delegates had registered by Wednesday morning for the B. Y. P. U. and Sunday School convention of the Ohio State Baptist Association, colored, which opened Tuesday morning at the Third Baptist Church. Sessions will continue until Friday evening.

Tuesday and Wednesday programs were devoted to the Sunday School and Thursday and Friday the B. Y. P. U. will be the subject of the conferences and addresses. J. R. Davis, of Sandusky, president of the association, is presiding.

The Tuesday morning session was opened by a devotional service in charge of Frank L. Reynolds, of Columbus, whose subject was "Love the Motive of Sacrifice." President Davis who called the convention to order at 9:30, appointed the Rev. J. H. Rickman of the Providence Association, chairman of the committee on committees.

The Rev. R. D. Phillips, pastor of Union Grove Baptist Church, Columbus, delivered the annual sermon, using the theme, "Sacrifice," from the text John 19:17.

PARK IS POPULAR PLACE TO AVOID HEAT OF SUMMER

Twenty benches which were donated by the Eagles Lodge to the Xenia Recreational Association for use in Shawnee Park, are being well utilized these hot summer days and evenings.

Occupants of the benches who seek the cooling breezes that blow from the lagoon, and the gratifying shade of the park trees, are in the main, families and groups of persons who will be most benefited by the refreshment from the day's heat afforded by the park.

Each evening sees family groups, the parents and children, enjoying their ease in the park. Many take picnic lunches which they spread under the trees. The park has already become a popular place for picnics; and the Presbyterian Church Sunday School will gather there Thursday afternoon and evening for an outing.

The grass in the park has been cut several times this season, and two new flower beds have been set out by The Xenia Garden Club. The Garden Club has received a gift of 500 geranium and petunia plants from the Schardt greenhouses, and these are being set out in various park plats, according to the president, Mrs. C. A. Kelble.

BUNK SAYS WARDEN

COLUMBUS, O., July 21.—Warden P. E. Thomas today characterized as "bunk" the declaration that the plot to assassinate Don R. Mellett, publisher of the Canton Daily News, was hatched behind the prison walls. The rumors were circulated, Thomas pointed out, because two men whose conviction Mellett obtained were imprisoned here.

The advent of Christ into the world, said the speaker, was not without purpose or plan. He came as no other had ever come, heard by a song sung by angels, with a star to guide the Wise Men to His birthplace. "So the cross of supreme sacrifice has become the emblem of all nations," he said.

Mrs. W. E. Moore opened the specialization hour with a talk on teacher training. Dr. Charles R. Lewis, of Akron, talked on "The Body a Fit Temple in Which to Dwell." Dr. B. F. McWilliams, of Toledo, had for his topic, "Benefit of the Week Day School of Religion."

Mrs. Huldah Howell, of Bidwell, opened the afternoon session with devotionals, which were followed by the annual addresses of the president, J. R. Davis. President Davis said that over 1,500 bulletins had been sent to the various Sunday Schools of the state and urged the co-operation of pastors with the state standard. Each church and school should have a prepared program, he said. The pupil needs the law of the school. Training means power," he said.

The president said that the year has been a very busy one. Group conferences were later held in the auditorium of Zion Baptist Church at which Children's workers, Leaders of Young People's Division and adult workers convened.

The Rev. L. R. Mitchell of Lima, delivered the inspirational address at the evening session. His subject was "The Ideal and Character of Church Life." The speaker said that real life must be given serious concern. "The more we come to the life, the more we see the sense of living. We should have less feeling, and more judgment," said the speaker. Many persons responded to the consecration call. The evening devotional service was conducted by Miss Malinda Belle Clayton, of Sandusky.

Steve Will start STATE FAIR RACES OFFICIAL STATES

George Rittenour, member of the Ohio Board of Agriculture, is quoted as having declared that the well-known and popular starting judge, Steve G. Phillips, Xenia, will start the trotters and pacers during Ohio State Fair races.

Rittenour is said to have let this interesting bit of information drop in an interview at his Picketown home. This can be taken as coming from an authoritative source for Rittenour's word at all times, and in this case in particular may be taken at its full value, the interviewer says.

The Picketown farmer-mine operator is in charge of the state fair's speed program and has been since his appointment several years ago. Phillips spent the winter in Miami, Florida, returning to the North, May 10 to officiate at Fremont, the opener for the Ohio Short Ship circuit, the week of May 31. He was in the stand at the grand circuit opening at North Randall and winds up with the major circuit at Lexington.

With interest in the contest growing daily, candidates for the August primary are spending busy days presenting their claims to the voters of Greene County. The coming primary will present some special features that is making the campaign one of unusual interest and contestants are not leaving any stone unturned to secure support.

More and more political candidates are realizing the power of the press, and are adopting it as a method of advertising in preference to other time honored but less effective means. START CAMPAIGN TO SUPPRESS WORTS

WASHINGTON, July 21.—A campaign to prevent the sale of Worts, a malt preparation easily convertible into real beer was started by the federal prohibition unit today.

Prohibition administrators were notified to refuse permits to breweries manufacturing the concoction—non-alcoholic when first made but developing into high power beer by addition of yeast.

Some courts have ruled that manufacturers of Worts is legal but the government is pressing a case in the Chicago federal court as it contends Worts is used only as a medium for brewing real beer.

THE VALUE OF REPUTATION

The value of a man is what he does, the worth he shows the world. He may be ever so good inside. If he doesn't prove it, he's worthless.

The value of a watch, a skillet, an automobile, is what it does, the power it shows its user. It may be of highest serving power. If it can't prove it, it's useless. The reputation of any product is the known proof of its worth. The value of that known proof is that you can recognize it.

When you buy an advertised watch or skillet, you buy value with a reputable manufacturer's name behind it. You don't have to wait till you use it to know it. The qualities which made it advertisable have proved the worth for you. You need only ask for the product by name. Fastened securely to that name are quality, service, satisfaction.

MISS SHERLOCK HOLMES

A man who spoke no English appeared at the Salt Lake City passenger depot to demand telephone word with an address that nobody could understand. The chief operator at central took the name that was all but unintelligible, though it sounded like "Hinsissel," as he pronounced it, and finally located at Eureka, 70 miles away, a subscriber with a name that might be imagined to be what the caller gave. A request to his Eureka man to answer, and if possible, assist the caller to be understood, disclosed that the caller was the Eureka man's nephew, just over from Norway, and stranded in Salt Lake City through some ticket mistake or loss.

They learn how to serve in the telephone company, as it emphasizes courtesy and service for its patrons.

PETTING PRISONERS

Sunday was a gala day at Sing Sing. The convict baseball team played a double-header, outsiders were admitted and a collection was taken for the benefit of the inmates. While no just person will complain at the commendable efforts to better the conditions of the prisoners, it is a serious question whether the games with outside teams, at which numbers of impressionable young boys and girls are admitted, are best for the public. The contrast presented is well marked. The visiting teams, usually hard-working young men, realize they must provide their own equipment and, for the most part, they play upon crowded fields in the public park. The convicts have everything provided for them and enjoy playing upon a well-kept field at all times.

It is questionable whether it is a good thing to spread the idea among these young visitors that "Sing Sing is not such a bad place," as a holdup man recently remarked when arraigned in court. There is such a thing as making jail too attractive—that is, for the welfare of the community at large.

TIMBER A NECESSARY CROP

Concerted efforts of state, federal and private agencies to plan and to secure the general application of practical methods of forest taxation which will effectively promote timber conservation and reforestation through private enterprise, are absolutely necessary.

The Natural Resources Department of the United States Chamber of Commerce recommends that taxes should not be imposed upon the growing trees, but upon the harvest or yield of forest lands.

"The absence of forestry policies to encourage the replacing of old crops with new," says the report, "has resulted in the virtual abandonment of large areas of forest land. At present there are over 80,000,000 acres of cutover land, without seed trees, not producing, and classed as waste lands. There are over 135,000,000 acres of inferior second-growth timber which is not considered merchantable. If an adequate supply of domestic timber is to be developed for future needs, it is essential that these areas be brought back into production."

Today's Talk

TO PLEASE

In a way, throughout life, we are attached to a kind of slavery doing things that we had rather not but which we feel we must. But in so doing we perform a double service—one to ourselves and one to someone else—for in nearly every case where we do something that we would rather not somebody else is pleased—and then we ourselves get the pleased reaction.

How many times the boy goes to his work in pouting mood only to come out of it with red cheeks and smiling face. The father or mother or teacher knew best. And so the boy learned a lesson.

To please people is the job of all. The writer, the theatrical producer, the artist, the speaker, the maker of goods, the inventor—all do their work that somebody else may be pleased in addition to themselves.

To please by your voice, your manner, your whole personality, is to increase your own happiness vastly.

Try to please—no matter what your work. And if something particularly unhappy seems to be roiling around in your heart, don't let anybody know about it. Just try to give a glad front and do your best to please.

The employee who pays no attention to pleasing his employer soon goes out—not up.

I met a man the other evening and a group of us were discussing him later on. All agreed that he was one of the most pleasing men any one of us had met in a long time. He bubbled with vitality, but it was all so quiet and calm and appealing.

To please—it goes so far!

GOOD BERRY SHORTCAKE

A shortcake may be made with any fruit—orange, peaches, bananas, even with canned fruit or stewed dried fruit. But berry shortcakes are perhaps the most popular.

Many women prefer a sweet shortcake dough. But I think there is none so delicious as the old-fashioned "biscuit shortcake," slightly sweetened. To my mind, a shortcake dough made with eggs is too rich to combine with whipped cream and sweetened berries. Here is "just how" I go about making mine:

Old-Time Shortcake: Sift together two cups of bread flour, one-third teaspoon of salt, nine inches in diameter of baking powder and two rounded tablespoons of granulated sugar. Into this mix two tablespoons (rounded) of lard and two tablespoons of butter, using two knives held scissor-fashion. Now stir in one cup of cold, sweet milk. The result will be a stiff dough. Scrape it out into a round layer-cake pan (without placing the dough on a bread board). My pan measures ten inches in diameter across the top, nine inches in diameter on the bottom, and has slightly flaring sides one inch high. I merely pat down the dough in this pan, spreading it well against the sides, and using wax paper between it and the pan (thus, it is not necessary to grease the pan at all).

I slip the pan into a hot oven—450 degrees if you use a Fahrenheit oven thermometer—and keep it at this same temperature for 20 minutes, when the shortcake will have risen well above the pan top and will be delicately browned and done to a flaky consistency (light throughout, never

HUMAN SKULL FORTY THOUSAND YEARS OF AGE IS DISCOVERED

LONDON, July 21.—A human skull, said to be 40,000 years old, will be one of the principal exhibits before the meeting of the British Association, which opens at Oxford on August 4th.

The skull was recently unearthed at Gibraltar by Miss D. A. E. Garrod during excavations there. It was found several feet underground. Numerous Mousterian flint implements were found on the spot.

Discovery of the fragments will probably lead to the identification of another skull which was discovered in the vicinity in 1840 and which is believed to be a remnant of the Neanderthal race. The earlier skull is thought to have been that of a female and the recently discovered skull is expected to be accepted as proof that the race existed throughout Europe.

The race is said to be African in origin and the first indication of its wide scope at an early date was found in Germany in 1850 when a skull was found in the Neanderthal Valley. Although these skulls have the raised eyebrow bones, similar to those found in skulls of apes, the race is accepted as human.

INGRATITUDE

Let not ingratitude your heart debase,

Be not embittered by the sins of men,

Stand ready ever to be kind again.

All memory of unworthiness erase, Do not with hatred nobleness replace.

How shall you answer for your conduct when Judgment is passed? And shall it serve you then

To plead the wrong of others for your case?

Let not ungrateful brothers drag you down,

But keep your spirit kindly and serene,

Let not a mean acquaintance make you mean,

Bravest is he who smiles when others frown,

Strongest is he whose heart with kindness beats

Despite the base ingratitude it meets.

GIRLS, USE LEMON TO WHITEN SKIN

The only harmless way to bleach the skin white is to mix the juices of two lemons with three ounces of Orchard White, which any druggist will supply for a few cents.

Shake well in a bottle, and you have a whole quarter-pint of the most wonderful skin whitener, softener and beautifier.

Massage this sweetly fragrant lemon bleach into the face, neck, arms and hands. It can not irritate.

Famous stage beauties use it to bring that clear, youthful skin and rosy-white complexion; also a freckle, sunburn and tan bleach.

You must mix this remarkable lotion yourself. It can not be brought ready to use because it acts best immediately after it is prepared.

Greene County History

TRANSYLVANIA

A village named Transylvania was platted by Samuel T. Owens, county surveyor, for the heirs of J. W. Merrick, in 1850. E. F. Drake and Benoni Nesbit were the agents and attorneys for the heirs and had the surveying work done and took charge of the sale of lots.

There were only ten lots, "irregular for the most part, located on the southwest bank of the Little Miami River, in part of sections eighteen and twenty-four, township four, range five." The survey was made May 16 and 17, 1850. The plat was sworn to and acknowledged by Lydia Merrick November 30, 1850.

This proposed village was immediately west of the Little Miami River, across the stream from Spring Valley, along the Cincinnati Pike. Its platting was the extent of its history.

There was a small hamlet bearing the same name in existence on the same site as early as the '20s. This Transylvania was the forerunner of the village of Spring Valley. When the railroad was surveyed through the township in the fore part of the '40s, the Waltons decided that the best site for the town would be on the east side of the Little Miami, and accordingly platted their town on that side.

This meant the dissolution of whatever was left of the ancient village of Transylvania, its few inhabitants and business enterprises moving across the river to the new site. Little is known of the history of the original Transylvania other than that a man named Jeffrey Truman had a tavern there, and presumably a small store of some description.

NORWICH PAGEANT DEPICTS HISTORY

NORWICH, Eng., July 21.—A pageant of the history of Norwich, from the Saxon invasion to the 17th century period, opened here today.

More than 1,000 people participated in the first episode showing the Roman-British refuge to Norwich during the invasion of the Saxon. The second episode enacted the surrender of the keys of Norwich Castle in 1076 to the Norman conquerors.

In the third act, showing the laying of the foundation of the famous Norwich cathedral, the lines of the actors were those of the translation of the then Bishop of Norwich's letters telling of the occasion.

Other episodes depicted Queen Philippa and the Weavers, Tomblard Fair, Kett's Rebellion and Queen Elizabeth.

The Theatre

The report that Flo Ziegfeld will not again issue a "Follies," which musical comedy effort has become a tradition of the American stage since its inception in 1907, should draw a tear of mourning from those who think the "Follies" have represented the peak of musical comedy production.

For reasons of litigation and ill abilities, the Follies may not again appear under that name. Mr. Ziegfeld does not own the Follies completely and perhaps because of this disturbance, his summer revue is called "No Foolin'."

"No Foolin'" is a sprightly song number of the current revue and from it the production got its name, being changed at the last moment from the "Palm Beach Girl." The comic antics and dancing of James Barton and the contributions of Ray Dooley and Andrew Toombes are said to make "No Foolin'" of considerable interest, even in these hot days.

The Dayton Theater Guild is reported to have accomplished much in its short life especially in producing plays professionally perfect although with amateur casts.

Katherine Bill, who is directing the guild shows, is given credit for wise casting to bring about this result while staging is looked into carefully. The Guild is now producing "The Romantic Young Lady," a Spanish comedy from the pen of Sierra Martinez.

Pauline Curtner, familiarly known as "Pat" Curtner, who has studied stage expression and dramatics, is taking an important interest in the Guild.

Xenians will remember Miss Curtner played the lead with the Community Players, a Dayton organization also, now out of existence, which visited the Opera House here several years ago.

The Community Players were poorly organized but were directed by Grace Stivers, Dayton teacher. They were probably the forerunner in the present theatrical movement out of which has sprung the Guild.

The Community Players staged a clumsy piece for the local audience and looked like so many school youngsters while doing it.

Modish Mitzi DAD HAS A FRIEND WHO HAS A YACHT By Jay V. Jay

So delightful of Dad's friend, Mitzi thinks, to give her a chance to wear her newest white silk sport frock. And, of course, to see the harbor too. Mitzi's dress, you'll notice, has short sleeves and a tailed short front. Polly wears a white silk skirt and a white sweater with colored stripes. Aunt Sophia wears a white coat of wool cheviot and what Dad and the Goofer wear isn't a matter of enough importance to describe. It seems to be perfectly adequate.

Here, now, they are posed properly so you can appreciate their hats. Polly and Mitzi both wear the new very light felts that are creased across the crown according to one's individual taste in creases. Aunt Sophia wears a larger hat of silk with a facing of Milan straw under the brim. "Where are we going?" inquires Polly. "What does it matter? I feel dressed for any possible occasion, including shipwreck," answers Mitzi cheerfully.

WIDOW OF WOODROW WILSON AVOIDING PUBLIC ATTENTION

WASHINGTON, July 21.—Edith Bolling Wilson, widow of the War President Woodrow Wilson is devoting her time to housekeeping, biography, letter writing and avoiding the public eye.

Her days are full but occasionally Mrs. Wilson finds time to drive her electric automobile through the park and to visit a few friends. A friend disclosed today that most of her mornings are taken up with correspondence from friends all over the world. She answers all letters personally in long hand.

Last winter she sat in the senate galleries, listening to the world court debate. Then as always she was dressed in mourning.

Her family occupies a leading place in her attention. Her step-daughter, Margaret Wilson, engaged in social work in New York visits her occasionally. Her brother, John R. Bolling lives with her in the same little brick house in which Woodrow Wilson died in 1924.

Mrs. Wilson often makes quiet, unheralded trips to the unfinished National Cathedral on the height of Mount St. Albans, overlooking Washington and places flowers over the crypt of Woodrow Wilson.

She does not appear in society but she spends many evenings with her friends at their homes. Senators Swanson and Glass of Virginia, her home state and that of Woodrow Wilson, are her closest friends.

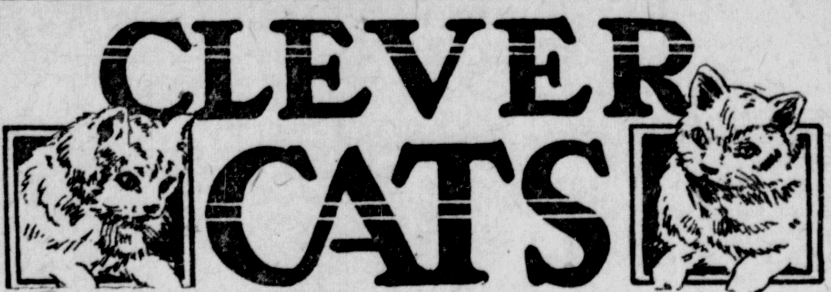

Mrs. Wilson personally directs the housekeeping of her establishment which has a staff including a butler, a maid and a cook. She is collaborating with Ray Stannard Baker, Amherst, Mass., author and one of the war president's closest friends in preparation of a Wilson biography in four volumes. Baker frequently consults her. Two of the volumes are to be issued in a few years. Wilson was a voluminous letter writer and his widow has many thousands of his letters. The task of selecting the ones to be used takes much of her time.

Mrs. Wilson seldom leaves Washington, although she has made one trip to New York this year. She never speaks for publication.

Volcano Emits Flood of Lava, Killing Many Islanders

This is a remarkable picture of the eruption of the Volcano of Santurri, on the Island of Cyclades, Greece. Many persons were killed by the molten lava that ran down to the sea. Earthquakes at the same time injured many others.

CLEVER CATS

Dogs may be smart but cats are clever. If you don't believe this "ask the man who owns one."

In a popularity contest, although dogs would undoubtedly rank first as the best pets, cats would just as surely ankle in a close second and the statement that the canine is the best household animal would probably be disputed by a great majority.

People are just as proud of their cats as they are of dogs. Dogs are generally considered valuable for their smartness, almost humaneness as companions, while the cat with all its feline smartness, is regarded as possessing more limited accomplishments. Asking a few children which they like better, cats or dogs, it is found girls lean to the former and boys to the latter.

Both animals must have a jealous nature for they have little in common, but although going against tradition, there have been rare examples of friendship between cats and dogs.

If a cat is pretty and soft, if it washes itself thoroughly, drinks its milk tidily, and purrs contentedly and in the right key, it may be said that a cat fulfills all feline requirements.

All children seem to instinctively want to dress their cats up. In one instance a little girl has a complete outfit for her kitten, including even a nightgown and nightcap, and the cat wears them quite contentedly.

Another little girl has seven kittens. One of them has for his particular amusement the manipulation of a typewriter. He plays with the keys, pressing them down until the letters come up, then releasing them and trying to catch the letters before they fall back into place. Another of the group likes to jump upon the piano and "run the scales," while a third has a particular aversion for the great open spaces and dives for shelter whenever anybody mentions the word "door."

Health Hints

by the Father of Physical Culture

BERNARD MACFADDEN

Jaundice or yellow Jaundice is an aggravated form of liver disease, characterized by the yellow hue of the skin and whites of the eyes, which condition is due to the clogging of the bile ducts, causing the waste to be absorbed by the blood instead of passing into the small intestine. In addition to this symptom, from which the disease derives its name, other signs are biliousness, nausea, an offensive tongue, dry and parched lips, much belching, and vomiting. Jaundice is often present in diseases of the heart and infectious ailments. Or it may appear in a simple form uncomplicated with other maladies. In the latter case it is generally due to inflammation of the bile duct with inflammatory catarrh of the small intestine.

As a rule the symptoms of the disease in its simple form disappear in a few days. They may, however, persist for months, and in this case some other and more serious trouble is the cause of their so doing.

The treatment of the disease differs very materially—depending upon whether it manifests itself in an acute or chronic form. The treatment of the chronic symptoms depends upon the blood-purifying and vitality-building process, while the treatment of acute symptoms consists of arousing to the greatest possible degree of immediate activity the blood-purifying organs.

In treating the acute symptoms, I would first advise the drinking of a copious quantity of hot water. It would be to advantage to drink as much of this hot water as possible within the first two or three hours of beginning treatment, and many instances this may induce vomiting, but this should not worry the patient in the least; in fact, vomiting is often of advantage. The hot water drinking should be continued, and very often it alone will bring about the desired cure.

In many instances there is inactivity of the alimentary canal, and under such circumstances the use of the full enema once each day while the acute symptoms continue is advised. If the patient is feverish, this enema should be cool, otherwise it should be warm. Absolutely no food of any kind should be taken while the acute symptoms continue.

TANNING WITH ARRELL

NEW YORK, July 21.—Form shown by young foreign athletes in the big French and English tennis and golf championships brought witnesses back with a distinct warning to America—"Look out and get busy!"

The long continuation of successes that have been scored since the war by American athletes in international competitions and the possession of such stars as Bobby Jones, Bill Tilden, Bill Johnston, Vinnie Richards, Helen Wills and Glenna Collett have caused American athletics to doze into a trance of false security.

With the exception of Bobby Jones, who need fear no golf player, in the world as long as he maintains his present game, the United States hasn't a single outstanding athlete in these sports who is not in acute danger of a foreign rival.

Frequent mention has been made recently of the strength of the French Davis Cup team. Rene Lacoste, Jean Borotra, Henri Cochet, Paul Feret and Jacques Brugnon are not only a team that will be a decided threat for the cup but they are individuals, the first three of which have a game at present good enough to beat Tilden if he proves this season not to be the super-player of two years ago.

Borotra apparently has recovered from an injured back he suffered during the winter as there was no indication of physical disability in his match against Howard Kinsey when he won the Wimbledon tennis title.

There is no disposition to predict that the men's national championship at Germantown will be a three-out-of-four French affair as it was at Wimbledon and in Paris. The draw will have much to say about that. If those four or five Frenchmen should be scattered around in the four sections, however, it will take all the best tennis to subdue them.

Helen Wills, who until this season, was looked upon as the only rival of Mlle. Suzanne Lenglen and a sure world's champion of the future has others on her hands now.

Senorita d'Alvarez, the Spanish champion and Mlle. Katrinka Bouman, the Holland champion, who may be seen at Forest Hills are two prospects just as good as the American champion was two years ago. They haven't quite as much pace and experience as Miss Wills but they have more strokes, better execution and much more speed.

The effects of the operation she was forced to undergo in Paris may handicap Miss Wills but on the other hand she may be a better player as she had been handicapped for a long time before the operation with a fling of fatigue she couldn't diagnose.

Another star athlete in France, who is certain to be much in prominence in a short time is Mlle. Thione de la Chaume, the seventeen year old girl who won the French golf championship by beating Miss Cecil Leitch, who later won the British championship.

Miss Mary K. Browne, who is equally competent as a critic of tennis and golf saw the French girl in the championship and enthused about her.

"She is one of the finest prospects I have ever seen," Miss Browne said. "Her form is perfect and her game is sound. All she needs is more strength for distance and more tournament experience and she ought to be a champion."

England also has two great youngsters coming along in tennis, Miss Betty Nuthall, a fifteen-year old girl and H. W. Austin, a young Cambridge student, eighteen years old.

Miss Nuthall is a pretty little miss, who has not fallen for the boyish bob and who wears long tresses hanging down her shoulders, somewhat mindful of the Helen Wills of the "pig tail" days. She has the handicap of the underhand service, so popular with many British women but some of the older girls are training her to use the overhand.

Young Austin is a brother of the former Miss Joan Austin, who married Randolph Lovett, one of the veteran British Davis Cup stars and he has learned a lot from his brother-in-law. He is a most promising youngster with a game that is very much American in style and aggressiveness.

The Olympic games are coming on in two years and foreign critics are not bashful in predicting that the United States is going to be beaten in Amsterdam. Foreign nations are talking seriously about making plans for the next games but apparently the American officials believe that all that will be necessary will be to get the boys on some kind of a boat, send them over and let them knock over the foreigners.

STORMS MAY BRING HEAT RELIEF

MYSTERIOUS WITNESS ENTERS PROBE OF MURDER

DETECTIVE HOPING TO IDENTIFY GREEK AS MELLETT SLAYER

Slater Takes Canton Man
To Pittsburgh To See
Psilias

PITTSBURGH, Pa., July 21.—Hope of connecting "George The Greek" Psilias with the murder of Don R. Mellett, Canton publisher, hangs on the opinion of a mysterious witness who accompanied Ora Slater, special detective here last night.

The possibility that Psilias may obtain an automatic release from the custody of local authorities due to a provision in the Pennsylvania law which prohibits the holding of a suspect for more than five days, caused considerable anxiety.

In such event, Canton investigators planned to seek his re-arrest on the Ohio warrants if the circumstances of the present inquiry justify his further detention.

Lieut. Peter Connors of the homicide squad assigned to trace the movements of Psilias, is reported to have established that the Greek reached Warren, Ohio, after 11:30 a. m. the day of the murder.

Should this discovery be confirmed by the failure of Detective Slater's mysterious witness to identify Psilias as one of the persons seen lurking near the home of Mellett on the night of the murder, local authorities confess they will have to seek other clues in the case.

CANTON, July 21.—Investigators into the murder of Don R. Mellett, Canton publisher after a night of frenzied activity here were returning to Pittsburgh today for a second attempt to identify "George The Greek" Psilias as one of the men seen loitering near Mellett's home the night of the crime.

Pennsylvania law which provides that no one shall be held as a prisoner in whose behalf habeas corpus proceedings are pending, blocked yesterday's effort to identify Psilias. The hearing is to be held in Pittsburgh today.

Detective Ora Slater in charge of the hunt for Mellett's assassin and County Prosecutor C. B. McClintock, with Henry DeVille, the witness who identified a newspaper picture of Psilias, left here early this morning.

In event the Greek's alibi is proven false by De Ville's identification, the Pittsburgh court could be asked to detain the prisoner three days more on suspicion. At the end of that time unless a charge of murder was placed against him, Psilias would be automatically freed.

As things now stand, the Greek's alibi is expected to stand up in court. The Canton vice lieutenant whose visit to Psilias shortly before Mellett was murdered, called attention of investigators to the Greek, was questioned by police but released. He said the visit was a casual call.

A fresh effort to force the fight on the city civil service commission and open the way for changes in the police department was made yesterday by Judge H. C. Pontus, former attorney for Mellett. He asked hearing on a motion to set aside the temporary injunction restraining the mayor from removing two members of the commission. The court refused the motion but agreed to bring in an outside judge to set a date for the hearing some time today.

CLEVELAND, O., July 21.—The alibi of James W. Lamont, who surrendered to police here yesterday when he was wanted in connection with the Mellett murder may not hold up under investigation, police believed today. Lamont was held pending a thorough investigation. "On the night of the murder, I went down to a show and afterwards to dinner. I stayed in a bowling alley until midnight and then went home." He said forty witnesses could testify as to his movements. Lamont said he had not been out of the city for two or three weeks. August Beckman, Warren policeman, however, said he saw Lamont in Warren, four or five days ago, about the time Psilias was there.

TIME HUNG HEAVY ON HIS HANDS

CLEVELAND, O., July 21.—Time waits for no man—least of all for Thomas Miller, who swelters in jail here today, on a charge of petty larceny.

Miller arrived in town from Pittsburgh "dead broke." He must have money. Lemonades these hot days cost money. Miller slipped into a drug store and tucked two alarm clocks under his arm. But he forgot—time never waits. Just as he was crossing the street, one of the clocks went off with a loud clatter.

Traffic Officer Scheider looked surprised and saw Miller scampering down the street. He pursued the fleeing man and locked him up.

Following the meeting at which a resolution is expected to be drawn up, members of the association will attend funeral services for the attorney at the home, 825 N. King St., at 3:30 p. m.

VICTIM OF SHOOTING DIES LATE TUESDAY

Charles Andrews Succumbs at City Hospital, Springfield—Son, Vernon Andrews, Sought For Murder

Greene and Clark County authorities are spreading a net for the capture of Vernon Andrews, 26, farm hand on the H. S. Woosley farm, near Psilias, following the death of his father, Charles Andrews, 65, at Springfield City Hospital late Tuesday.

The elder Andrews died from blood poisoning getting in from gunshot wounds "alleged" to have been inflicted by his son at the Woosley farm as the aftermath of a quarrel between the father and son last Sunday.

After firing point blank at his father once with a shot gun, Andrews leaped into an automobile, and with his family, escaped toward Dayton by way of Cedarville and Xenia.

Arrest of the younger man is expected momentarily by Clark County officials. Greene County authorities are also redoubling their efforts to find the slayer.

Fresh clues have been unearthed and as the alleged assassin is now believed to be hiding in the southern part of the state, a net is being spread for him. If arrested, a charge of first degree murder may be placed against him.

The shooting occurred when the son interrupted a chat between his father and Woosley. The latter was the sole eye witness of the tragedy. The son is said to have approached within twenty feet of the elder Andrews and fired once without warning, the entire load entering the left side and lower abdomen.

Woosley prevented him from firing again and struggled with him. Throwing off his would-be captor, the youth escaped with his wife and children in an auto.

His movements were traced as far as Cedarville where the trail suddenly ended.

Funeral services for Andrews have not been arranged for pending the return of a verdict in the death by Theodore Schaefer, Clark County coroner.

BORDER PATROLMEN APPOINTED TO HELP CHECK SMUGGLING

Wall Of Arms And Men
Formed On U. S.
Borders

WASHINGTON, July 21.—The treasury department announced today that 235 additional border patrolmen have been appointed, bringing to 545 the federal border police force which battles the smuggling of liquor, narcotics and merchandise into the United States.

Frank Dow, acting dry czar, said the reinforcements would make "a wall of arms and men" around the entire border to prevent customs law violations. Revenues collected by the patrol will virtually pay the salary and expense of the organization, he predicted.

Forty-five patrolmen were assigned to the Ohio-Michigan district because of the great liquor traffic on the Great Lakes and along the Detroit river.

To prevent smuggling from Mexico Dow assigned ten officers to Galveston, Texas and three to San Antonio.

The new officers will be equipped with automobiles along land stations and motorboats were assigned to waterfront duty. Equipment will be added to the force of machines and boats taken from bootleggers and smugglers.

JURY UNABLE TO FIND INDICTMENT

LOS ANGELES, Cal., July 21.—Sufficient evidence has not been found to warrant an indictment in the alleged kidnapping of Aimee Semple McPherson, evangelist, the county grand jury declared in a report to Superior Judge Keetch.

The report stated: "The grand jury has had presented to it for consideration the evidence in the alleged kidnapping of Aimee Semple McPherson, and find there is insufficient evidence to warrant an indictment."

When the case was submitted to the grand jury, District Attorney Asa L. Keyes instructed the jurors on the law and left them blank indictments against three persons, two men and a woman, alleged by the evangelist to have abducted her one of them being known to her as "Steve" while the woman was called "Rose."

With these indictments before them, the report was interpreted as failure to substantiate the story of Mrs. McPherson.

ate experience with abductors, there can be only one ultimate result—vindication of my cause and the triumph of evangelism.

Throughout history the progress of religion has been impeded by the skeptics and by those jealous of the power of righteousness. This entire affair I am convinced, was the work of the enemies of Angelus Temple, and the four-square gospel.

Jealous of the success of a mighty crusade, based on a simple old-fashioned faith in the Bible, my enemies have engineered one of the most cunning and infamous plots ever perpetrated on a public character.

Without seeking to martyr myself or my crusade, steeped in unwarranted accusations and insinuations, I have tried to dignify the many criticisms and schemes, which had as their sole aim the wrecking of the pillars of a beneficent cause.

The continued popularity of Angelus Temple is evidence of the unshaken faith of my people. The Temple every day, since the outbreak of the ill advised attacks of my enemies, has been filled from pulpit to dome by those who have accepted the Lord Jesus Christ as their saviour.

At Thursday's weekly baptismal service, 136 were immersed. Hundreds of students are in training for evangelistic and foreign mission work.

PARISIANS DRAW MONEY FROM BANKS WHILE FRANC SLUMPS

Crowds Await Opening Of Bank Of Paris—Herriot Government Plans Moves To Halt Decline—Standard Drops Again

PARIS, July 21.—As Premier Herriot prepared to go before the French parliament today with the ministerial declaration in which he outlines plans of his government to halt the collapse of the franc, Parisians were hurriedly withdrawing their money from banks to employ it in some fashion by which they could retain its value.

Crowds were camped before the doors of the Bank of Paris this morning waiting for the institution to open, so that they might remove their funds.

The franc slumped to a new record today, opening at 242 to the pound and 49.80 to the dollar.

Facing a hostile parliament and a fiscal crisis which has overthrown government after government, Herriot will make his ministerial declaration simultaneously to the chamber and senate.

Finance Minister Anatole De Monzie was reported to be working on the financial plan of the new government, the factor by which Herriot will stand or fall.

Meanwhile a non-partisan republican group for "public safety" composed of deputies, is being formed with the intention of forcing Herriot to do its bidding in the efforts to save France from complete financial disaster.

By inference, America was described as the "shylock of nations" by speakers in the debate in which Sir Phillip Snowden, former chancellor of the exchequer, Hilton Young, who lost an arm in the raid on Zeppelins and other leaders took part.

Winston Churchill, chancellor of the exchequer commented strongly on the recent statement ascribed to Secretary of the Treasury Andrew Mellon that England borrowed a large proportion of its present debt from America for purely commercial purposes.

"The complete misapprehension of the facts is so serious" he said in referring to the statement, "that it makes me almost doubt the authenticity of the statement."

"All loans made by the United States to the allies were by an act of congress, specifically limited to the purpose of prosecuting the war."

DEATHS FOLLOW IN WAKE OF HEAT WAVE IN CENTRAL STATES

Many Overcome In Ohio
—Drownings Take Victims

Thunderstorms may bring relief to the heat stricken states of Ohio, Kentucky and West Virginia this afternoon or tonight, the U. S. weather bureau here announced today.

Not since 1878 when the mercury soared to 104 has such an intense wave gripped the three states, leaving thousands of sufferers fairly gasping for breath.

As thousands of persons flocked to the beaches, numerous drownings were reported.

Two deaths directly attributable to the heat occurred in Cleveland. One of the victims, Edwin C. Brown, 62, collapsed and died from the heat.

At Manchester, Ohio, William Parr, a farmer died from sunstroke while at Wellington, another farmer collapsed and died while pitching hay.

Prostrations were reported from almost every section. Another drowning occurred at Minster, Ohio, where Henry Melchart, 11, drowned in the Fort Loramie reservoir. Two companions stood by helplessly.

Oscar Smith, 30, collapsed while enroute from Hamilton to Cincinnati in a bus.

At Gloucester, Ohio, the heat became so torrid a gasoline tank exploded. Harold Hawk, a truck driver, was seriously burned.

The first toll of the year in Bowling Green, Ohio, was recorded when Mrs. William Potes, 67, collapsed and died. Temperatures of 95 were registered in that area.

Heat crazed dogs ran amuck in several cities. In Cleveland mad dogs bit three persons.

XENIANS PROMISED RELIEF FROM HEAT

The much-heralded relief from the tropical temperature which has gripped Xenia for the past three days, was in sight Wednesday, and according to the weather bureau is due to arrive sometime in the afternoon or evening.

It will take the form of thunderstorms and showers with accompanying cooling weather dissipating the torturing, sweltering, sizzling heat that has sent the mercury soaring far above the ninety degree mark for new heat records the past two days.

The torrid wave splintered several records of long standing Tuesday when registrations of ninety-six and ninety-seven degrees were shown.

Relief is predicted generally for Ohio by the Washington forecast of thundershowers and showers, with cooler weather and continued fair and cooler Thursday.

The break in the heat wave was not apparent Wednesday morning for a blistering and merciless sun shown down brightly out of a cloudless sky.

No cases of heat prostrations in Xenia have been reported.

AMERICA "SHYLOCK" OF NATIONS CHARGED

LONDON, July 21.—America's position on war debts came under fire in the house of commons last night when outspoken resentment against the United States featured the debate.

By inference, America was described as the "shylock of nations" by speakers in the debate in which Sir Phillip Snowden, former chancellor of the exchequer, Hilton Young, who lost an arm in the raid on Zeppelins and other leaders took part.

Winston Churchill, chancellor of the exchequer commented strongly on the recent statement ascribed to Secretary of the Treasury Andrew Mellon that England borrowed a large proportion of its present debt from America for purely commercial purposes.

"The complete misapprehension of the facts is so serious" he said in referring to the statement, "that it makes me almost doubt the authenticity of the statement."

"All loans made by the United States to the allies were by an act of congress, specifically limited to the purpose of prosecuting the war."

The GILDED ROSE

by May Christie

WHO'S WHO IN THE STORY:
ROSLYN RIDGEWAY learns on her wedding day from idle gossip that she has been married for her money. Before her enormous fortune was left her, she had been an over-worked little drudge in her father's inn.

LANDIS RIDGEWAY, her husband is a brilliant, fascinating man, who was forced into the marriage by his mother, FLORENCE RIDGEWAY, an aristocratic old lady, who saw poverty staring her in the face, and chose the easiest way out. Roslyn, loving her husband, knows that he is still in love with her.

LYDIA HARBROOK, a beautiful, cold society girl who is bent on marrying STEVE VAN VORST, a wealthy old roue, although she is really fond of Landis in her selfish way. She is in Paris when she hears of Landis' marriage, and immediately returns to the United States. With her goes

RUPERT BRISCOE, a dissipated man of the world, who has seen Roslyn but once, and yet is deeply interested in her. Lydia learns of this interest, and when the two reach New York, she suggests that they ask the young Ridgeways to join them for dinner. She and Briscoe concoct a plot, whereby through an apparent misunderstanding Roslyn and Briscoe will be left alone together all evening, while she will be with her beloved Landis. Thus it happens that Landis is amazed to find her waiting for him in the lobby of Claridge's.

Chapter 25.
LYDIA REFUSES TO WAIT
She drew him into a corner that was dimly lit by a great ornamental lamp of gold.

"Wait here till the others come. They'll be arriving any minute!" She sank down on a luxuriously upholstered sofa.

"Please sit by me, Landis." Curious eyes were watching them so he obeyed. He had the average man's dislike of anything that savored of a scene or melodrama.

"Well, what have you to say?" The tone was not encouraging. "Nothing, except that I—I've worried frightfully—over our last meeting. It seemed so awful—knowing I have an enemy in the world—especially when it's someone who was once—awfully dear—and close to me—"

"But that's all over and done with, Lydia." He bit his lip and stared straight ahead of him, unseeing. "Don't pile on the agony! It's over, I tell you!"

Then he added, nonchalantly: "D'you mind if I smoke?"

Lydia leant a little nearer him. He could feel the fragrant and familiar odor of some scented stuff she washed her hair with. God! It did arouse old memories—

"This would never do!"

"Glad as ever, I suppose? Is Briscoe your latest capture? He moved definitely farther from her. Never again would he fall beneath her spell....

"Oh, we happened to cross over from Paris together. That was all. And then the idea got him that he'd call you up—and your wife—" her voice dropped at the latter word—"to ask you both out to dinner. He included me in the party not in the least realizing how you—you hate—and despise me!" And Lydia's pretty voice, low and with a little break in it, trailed off into silence.

"I don't hate you, Lydia." She saw that his hand—the sensitive, long-fingered, nervous hand that denoted a high-strung temperament—was trembling as he lit his cigarette. "I suppose I ought to be grateful to you, really, for teaching me—so much!"

"So much?"

The answer came, slowly and reluctantly as though torn from him against his better judgment.

"All that I've known of heaven—and almost all—of hell!"

"I taught you that, Landis?"

"Yes. Do you deny it?"

She turned towards him with a lighthearted and a suppleness that suggested the lovely motion of a panther.

"I don't deny that that time was the happiest of my life. And now..."

she hesitated. "I just want to ask you one question, Landis. It's for the sake of old times. Are you happy?"

A muscle in his lean face twitched.

"Are you?" she persisted, feeling that just a little ground was being gained.

"And if I weren't—" he half turned towards her, with a cynical little smile about his handsome mouth—"and if I weren't, it wouldn't make the slightest difference to you. So why bother to start such a conversation?"

Her reply came, low and whispering as the spring breeze that stirred the tall flowers in their vases.

"Your happiness... does... matter... vitally... to me!"

The man beside her yielded to sudden laughter, though his eyes were amused and brooding.

"A Duse? Or a Bernhardt? Which incarnation are you?"

She bit her lip. This reconciliation wasn't going to be so easy, after all.

The minutes ticked away. It was now eight-fifteen. Lydia started once as a man came through the doors who looked like Briscoe. The latter surely wouldn't be such an idiot as to come here, after their definite arrangement?

But no! It wasn't young Mrs. Ridgeway's escort. And they waited.

"You said our host had gone round to the hotel to fetch my wife?" Landis broke a little silence that had broken between the pair. His tone was not quite so brusque as heretofore.

"He said he would do so. I imagine that is why he's so late."

Her companion stirred restlessly on the couch. Lydia's peevishness, the old memories that the sight of her aroused, were curiously disturbing.

"I wish they'd come."

"Are you so much married?" Her air was gently rallying.

He ignored the challenge. After another silence, he glanced over at the clock.

"It's getting on. If you'll excuse me for a moment, I think I'll call up my wife and find out what is doing."

He disappeared for about five minutes, then returned to Lydia.

"They're on their way. Briscoe left a message to tell us to get a table and start dinner without them. But I vote we wait."

"I don't," cried Lydia, with a touch of her old imperiousness. "I'm starving."

She rose with a little air of hauteur. "Come along."

Where's the little girls of "pig-tails" and pinafores? It seems that the lanky little sister with freckled nose, who struggled with her

The girl in her early teens is more likely to be home practicing intricate steps for the high school operetta chorus or the Charleston than she is to be falling over the furniture. MRS. ANNA MCHEMRY
1008 E. PLUM STREET, MARSHALL, ILLINOIS

Marshall, Illinois—"After my second child was born, I never saw a well day for five years. My father was telling his druggist about my condition, and the druggist insisted that father take a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and have me try it, as it had helped his wife. I had given up, but to please father and mother, I commenced taking your medicine and in a week I had begun to feel better. When I passed through the Change of Life, I was taking the Vegetable Compound and I had no trouble of any kind."—Mrs. ANNA MCHEMRY, 1008 E. Plum St., Marshall, Illinois.

Another Woman Helped

Philadelphia, Penna.—Mrs. Caroline Nagy, of 2717, Sears St., in a recent letter to the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., says that after her child was born she was in a very weak condition. She could not seem to regain her health and went to her mother for advice. She told her to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, as it had helped her when in like condition, and it has helped her mother also. So Mrs. Nagy started taking it. She felt better after taking the first bottle, after taking six bottles her weakness and other troubles disappeared, and she is never doing praising the Compound.

In some families the fourth generation is learning the merit of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

COLORED BAPTIST WORKERS AT STATE CONVENTION IN XENIA

One hundred and sixty-nine delegates had registered by Wednesday morning for the B. Y. P. U. and Sunday School convention of the Ohio State Baptist Association, colored, which opened Tuesday morning at the Third Baptist Church. Sessions will continue until Friday evening.

Tuesday and Wednesday programs were devoted to the Sunday School and Thursday and Friday the B. Y. P. U. will be the subject of the conferences and addresses. J. R. Davis, of Sandusky, president of the association, is presiding.

The Tuesday morning session was opened by a devotional service in charge of Frank L. Reynolds, of Columbus, whose subject was "Love the Motive of Sacrifice." President Davis who called the convention to order at 9:30, appointed the Rev. J. H. Rickman of the Providence Association, chairman of the committee on committees.

The Rev. R. D. Phillips, pastor of Union Grove Baptist Church, Columbus, delivered the annual sermon, using the theme, "Sacrifice," from the text John 13:17.

Group conferences were later held in the auditorium of Zion Baptist Church at which various workers' leaders of Young People's Division and adult workers convened.

The Rev. L. R. Mitchell of Lima, delivered the inspirational address at the evening session. His subject was "The Ideal and Character of Church Life." The speaker said that real life must be given a serious concern.

"The more we come to the life, the more we see the sense of living. We should have less 'feeling' and more 'judgment,'" said the speaker. Many persons responded to the consecration call. The evening devotional service was conducted by Miss Malinda Belle Clayton, of Sandusky.

This list will appear twice each week until the election and people of the county will have an opportunity through this list to become familiar with the names of candidates for those offices for which there is contest. Other political advertising which will appear from time to time will also bring to the voters of the county the claims of the various candidates, who will use these columns to make the people of the county familiar with their desires and aims.

The fact that these candidates are making use of the most effective and most carefully tested of all methods of handling their campaign is in itself a recommendation of their judgment and business ability. The Gazette and Republican readers are urged to give their best consideration to the political advertising presented in these columns in order that they may be ready to give to the office and state the advantage of carefully thought out convictions when they go to the primary to cast their votes.

The contest for sheriff, treasurer, recorder and auditor are the ones that are arousing local interest because of the fact that groups of capable, well known candidates are in the field for each office. Enthusiastic followers are backing each candidate and on the first lap of the race the odds seem about even.

The contest for Democratic congressman from the seventh district and the selection of a Republican state central committee are of much interest to local voters.

The campaign starts out along definite, clear-cut lines and the race will be a pretty one. In order to be fully informed in regard to it follow the announcements and publicity which will be presented through these columns.

Who To Vote For

With interest in the contest growing daily, candidates for the August primary are spending busy days presenting their claims to the voters of Greene County. The coming primary will present some special features that is making the campaign one of unusual interest and contestants are not leaving any stone unturned to secure support.

More and more political candidates are realizing the power of the press, and are adopting it as a method of advertising in preference to other time honored but less effective means. The Gazette and Republican presents in today's issue the first of a list of candidates who group their advertising under the head of "Who To Vote For."

This list will appear twice each week until the election and people of the county will have an opportunity through this list to become familiar with the names of candidates for those offices for which there is contest. THE VALUE OF REPUTATION

The value of a man is what he does, the worth he shows the world. He may be ever so good inside. If he doesn't prove it, he's worthless.

The value of a watch, a skillet, an automobile, is what it does, the power it shows its user. It may be of highest serving power. If it can't prove it, it's useless. The reputation of any product is the known proof of its worth. The value of that known proof is that you can recognize it.

When you buy an advertised watch or skillet, you buy value with a reputable manufacturer's name behind it. You don't have to wait till you use it to know it. The qualities which made it advertisable have proved the worth for you. You need only ask for the product by name. Fastened securely to that name are quality, service, satisfaction.

MISS SHERLOCK HOLMES

A man who spoke no English appeared at the Salt Lake City passenger depot to demand telephone word with an address that nobody could understand. The chief operator at central took the name that was all but unintelligible, though it sounded like "Hinsissel," as he pronounced it, and finally located at Eureka, 70 miles away, a subscriber with a name that might be imagined to be what the caller gave. A request to his Eureka man to answer, and if possible, assist the caller to be understood, disclosed that the caller was the Eureka man's nephew, just over from Norway, and stranded in Salt Lake City through some ticket mistake or loss.

They learn how to serve in the telephone company, as it emphasizes courtesy and service for its patrons.

PETTING PRISONERS

Sunday was a gala day at Sing Sing. The convict baseball team played a double-header, outsiders were admitted and a collection was taken for the benefit of the inmates. While no just person will complain at the commendable efforts to better the conditions of the prisoners, it is a serious question whether the games with outside teams, at which numbers of impressionable young boys and girls are admitted, are best for the public. The contrast presented is well marked. The visiting teams, usually hard-working young men, realize they must provide their own equipment and, for the most part, they play upon crowded fields in the public park. The convicts have everything provided for them and enjoy playing upon a well-kept field at all times.

It is questionable whether it is a good thing to spread the idea among these young visitors that "Sing Sing is not such a bad place," as a holdup man recently remarked when arraigned in court. There is such a thing as making jail too attractive—that is, for the welfare of the community at large.

TIMBER A NECESSARY CROP

Concerted efforts of state, federal and private agencies to plan and to secure the general application of practical methods of forest taxation which will effectively promote timber conservation and reforestation through private enterprise, are absolutely necessary.

The Natural Resources Department of the United States Chamber of Commerce recommends that taxes should not be imposed upon the growing trees, but upon the harvest or yield of forest lands.

"The absence of forestry policies to encourage the replacing of old crops with new," says the report, "has resulted in the virtual abandonment of large areas of forest land. At present there are over 80,000,000 acres of cutover land, without seed trees, not producing, and classed as waste lands. There are over 135,000,000 acres of inferior second-growth timber which is not considered merchantable. If an adequate supply of domestic timber is to be developed for future needs, it is essential that these areas be brought back into production."

Today's Talk

TO PLEASE

In a way, throughout life, we are attached to a kind of slavery—doing things that we had rather not but which we feel we must.

But in so doing we perform a double service—one to ourselves and one to someone else—for in nearly every case where we do something that we would rather not somebody else is pleased—and then we ourselves get the pleased reaction.

How many times the boy goes to his work in pouting mood only to come out of it with red cheeks and smiling face. The father or mother or teacher knew best. And so the boy learned a lesson.

To please people is the job of all. The writer, the theatrical producer, the artist, the speaker, the maker of goods, the inventor—all do their work that somebody else may be pleased in addition to themselves.

To please by your voice, your manner, your whole personality, is to increase your own happiness vastly.

Try to please—no matter what your work. And if something particularly unhappy seems to be roving around in your heart, don't let anybody know about it. Just try to give a glad front and do your best to please.

The employee who pays no attention to pleasing his employer soon goes out—not up.

I met a man the other evening and a group of us were discussing him later on. All agreed that he was one of the most pleasing men any one of us had met in a long time. He bubbled with vitality, but it was all so quiet and calm and appealing.

To please—it goes so far!

GOOD BERRY SHORTCAKE

A shortcake may be made with any fruit—apples, peaches, bananas, even with canned fruit or stewed dried fruit. But berry shortcakes are perhaps the most popular.

Many women prefer a sweet shortcake dough. But I think there is none so delicious as the old-fashioned "bisquit shortcake," slightly sweetened. To my mind, a shortcake dough made with eggs is too rich to combine with whipped cream and sweetened berries. Here is "just how" I go about making mine:

Old-Time Shortcake: Sift together two cups of bread flour, one-third teaspoon of salt, four rounded teaspoons of baking powder and two rounded tablespoons of granulated sugar. Into this mix two tablespoons (rounded) of lard and two tablespoons of butter, using two knives held scissor-fashion. Now stir in one cup of cold, sweet milk. The result will be a stiff dough. Scrape it out into a round layer-cake pan (without placing the dough on a bread board). My pan measures ten inches in diameter across the top, nine inches in diameter on the bottom, and has slightly flaring sides one inch high. I merely pat down the dough in this pan, spreading it well against the sides, and using wax paper between it and the pan (thus, it is not necessary to grease the pan at all).

I slip the pan into a hot oven—450 degrees if you use a Fahrenheit oven thermometer—and keep it at this same temperature for 20 minutes, when the shortcake will have risen well above the pan top and will be delicately browned and done to a flaky consistency (light throughout, never

FOR ITCHING TORTURE

Use Antiseptic Liquid Zemo

There is one remedy that seldom fails to stop itching torture and relieve skin irritation, and that makes the skin soft, clear and healthy.

Any druggist can supply you with Zemo, which generally overcomes skin diseases. Eczema, Itch, Pimples, Rash, Blackheads, in most cases quickly give way to Zemo. Frequently, minor blemishes disappear overnight. Itching usually stops instantly. Zemo is a safe, antiseptic liquid that may be applied at any time, for it does not show. Ask your druggist for a small size 60c or large bottle $1.00.

HUMAN SKULL FORTY THOUSAND YEARS OF AGE IS DISCOVERED

LONDON, July 21.—A human skull, said to be 40,000 years old, will be one of the principal exhibits before the meeting of the British Association, which opens at Oxford on August 4th.

The skull was recently unearthed at Gibraltar by Miss D. A. E. Garrod during excavations there. It was found several feet underground. Numerous Mousterian flint implements were found on the spot.

Discovery of the fragments will probably lead to the identification of another skull which was discovered in the vicinity in 1940 and which is believed to be a remnant of the Neanderthal race. The earlier skull is thought to have been that of a female and the recently discovered skull is expected to be accepted as proof that the race existed throughout Europe.

The race is said to be African in origin and the first indication of its wide scope at an early date was found in Germany in 1850 when a skull was found in the Neanderthal Valley. Although these skulls have the raised eyebrow bones, similar to those found in skulls of apes, the race is accepted as human.

DIES AT AGE 98

GALION, O., July 21.—Mrs. Betty Agard, who died near here today would have been 99 years old August 6, her birthday anniversary. Mrs. Agard was ill but a short time before her death.

GIRLS, USE LEMON TO WHITEN SKIN

The only harmless way to bleach the skin white is to mix the juices of two lemons with three ounces of Orchard White, which any druggist will supply for a few cents. Shake well in a bottle, and you have a whole quart-pint of the most wonderful skin whitener, softener and beautifier.

Massage this sweetly fragrant lemon bleach into the face, neck, arms and hands. It can not irritate. Famous stage beauties use it to bring that clear, youthful skin and rosy-white complexion; also a freckle, sunburn and tan bleach. You must mix this remarkable lotion yourself. It can not be brought ready to use because it acts best immediately after it is prepared.

SIDELIGHTS ON GREENE COUNTY HISTORY

TRANSYLVANIA

A village named Transylvania was platted by Samuel T. Owens, county surveyor, for the heirs of J. W. Merrick. In 1850, E. F. Drake and Bononi Nesbit were the agents and attorneys for the heirs and had the surveying work done and took charge of the sale of lots.

There were only ten lots, "irregular for the most part, located on the southwest bank of the Little Miami River, in part of sections eighteen and twenty-four, township four, range five." The survey was made May 16 and 17, 1850. The plat was sworn to and acknowledged by Lydia Merrick November 30, 1850.

This proposed village was immediately west of the Little Miami River, across the stream from Spring Valley, along the Cincinnati Pike. Its platting was the extent of its history.

There was a small hamlet bearing the same name in existence on the same site as early as the '20s. This Transylvania was the forerunner of the village of Spring Valley. When the railroad was surveyed through the township in the fore part of the '40s, the Waltons decided that the best site for the town would be on the east side of the Little Miami, and accordingly platted their town on that side.

This meant the dissolution of whatever was left of the ancient village of Transylvania, its few inhabitants and business enterprises moving across the river to the new site. Little is known of the history of the original Transylvania other than that a man named Jeffrey Truman had a tavern there, and presumably a small store of some description.

NORWICH PAGEANT DEPICTS HISTORY

NORWICH, Eng., July 21.—A pageant of the history of Norwich, from the Saxon invasion to the 17th century period, opened here today.

More than 1,000 people participated in the first episode showing the Roman-British refuge to Norwich during the invasion of the Saxon. The second episode enacted the surrender of the keys of Norwich Castle in 1076 to the Norman conquerors.

In the third act, showing the laying of the foundation of the famous Norwich cathedral, the lines of the actors were those of the translation of the then Bishop of Norwich's letters telling of the occasion.

Other episodes depicted Queen Philippa and the Weavers, Tom Land Fair, Kett's Rebellion and Queen Elizabeth.

The Theatre

The report that Flo Ziegfeld will not again issue a "Follies," which musical comedy effort has become a tradition of the American stage since its inception in 1907, should draw a tear of mourning from those who think the "Follies" have represented the peak of musical comedy production.

For reasons of litigation and illabilities, the Follies may not again appear under that name. Mr. Ziegfeld does not own the Follies completely and perhaps because of this disturbance, his summer revue is called "No Foolin'."

"No Foolin'" is a sprightly song number of the current revue and from it the production got its name, being changed at the last moment from the "Palm Beach Girl." The comic antics and dancing of James Barton and the contributions of Ray Dooley and Andrew Toombes are said to make "No Foolin'" of considerable interest, even in these hot days.

The Dayton Theatre Guild is reported to have accomplished much in its short life especially in producing plays professionally perfect, although with amateur casts. Katherine Bill, who is directing the guild shows, is given credit for wise casting to bring about this result while staging is looked into carefully. The Guild is now producing "The Romantic Young Lady," a Spanish comedy from the pen of Sierra Martinez.

Pauline Curtner, familiarly known as "Pat" Curtner, who has studied stage expression and dramatics, is taking an important interest in the Guild.

Xenians will remember Miss Curtner played the lead with the Community Players, a Dayton organization also, now out of existence, which visited the Opera House here several years ago.

The Community Players were poorly organized but were directed by Grace Stivers, Dayton teacher. They were probably the forerunner in the present theatrical movement out of which has sprung the Guild.

The Community Players staged a clumsy piece for the local audience and looked like so many school youngsters while doing it.

Modish Mitzi DAD HAS A FRIEND WHO HAS A YACHT By Jay V. Jay

So delightful of Dad's friend, Mitzi thinks, to give her a chance to wear her newest white silk sport frock. And, of course, to see the harbor too. Mitzi's dress, you'll notice, has short sleeves and a tailored short front. Polly wears a white silk skirt and a white sweater with colored stripes. Aunt Sophia wears a white coat of wool cheviot and what Dad and the Goofer wear isn't a matter of enough importance to describe. It seems to be perfectly adequate.

Here, now, they are posed properly so you can appreciate their hats. Polly and Mitzi both wear the new very light felts that are creased across the crown according to one's individual taste in creases. Aunt Sophia wears a larger hat of silk with a facing of Milan straw under the brim. "Where are we going?" inquires Polly. "What does it matter? I feel dressed for any possible occasion, including shipwreck," answers Mitzi cheerfully.

WIDOW OF WOODROW WILSON AVOIDING PUBLIC ATTENTION

WASHINGTON, July 21.—Edith Bolling Wilson, widow of the War President Woodrow Wilson is devoting her time to housekeeping, biography, letter writing and avoiding the public eye.

Her days are full but occasionally Mrs. Wilson finds time to drive her electric automobile through the park and to visit a few friends. A friend disclosed today that most of her mornings are taken up with correspondence from friends all over the world. She answers all letters personally in long hand.

Last winter she sat in the senate galleries, listening to the world court debate. Then as always she was dressed in mourning.

Her family occupies a leading place in her attention. Her step-daughter, Margaret Wilson, engaged in social work in New York visits her occasionally. Her brother, John B. Bolling lives with her in the same little brick house in which Woodrow Wilson died in 1924.

Mrs. Wilson often makes quiet, unheralded trips to the unfinished National Cathedral on the height of Mount St Albans, overlooking Washington and places flowers over the crypt of Woodrow Wilson.

She does not appear in society but she spends many evenings with her friends at their homes. Senators Swanson and Glass of Virginia, her home state, and that of Woodrow Wilson, are her closest friends.

Mrs. Wilson personally directs the housekeeping of her establishment which has a staff including a butler, a maid and a cook.

She is collaborating with Ray Stannard Baker, author of the war president's closest friends in preparation of a Wilson biography in four volumes. Baker frequently consults her. Two of the volumes are to be issued in a few years. Wilson was a voluminous letter writer and his widow has many thousands of his letters. The task of selecting the ones to be used takes much of her time.

Mrs. Wilson seldom leaves Washington, although she has made one trip to New York this year. She never speaks for publication.

XENIA GOLFERS TO PLAY WASHINGTON

Xenia Country Club golfers will tee off with representatives of the Washington C. H., Country Club promptly at 2:30 o'clock Wednesday afternoon in the second inter-city match of the season for the locals, this time over the Xenia nine hole course.

Twenty golfers are expected to comprise the visiting team. Eighteen holes of match play are scheduled, the winner to be decided Nassau count, after which the visiting team will be guests of local golfers at dinner at the club house.

Xenia lost its first away-from-home match at Middletown two weeks ago but is confident of victory this week. Arrangements for the match are in the hands of Dr. Eber Reynolds.

Xenia's next match is at Wilmington, Wednesday, July 28.

HELPS CANDIDATE

R. Clint Cole, Findlay, was in Xenia Tuesday in the interests of the candidacy of Guy C. David, seeking Republican nomination for state treasurer. David's home is in Findlay where he has been Hancock County treasurer four years and for four years has been secretary of the state association of county treasurers.

Volcano Emits Flood of Lava, Killing Many Islanders

This is a remarkable picture of the eruption of the Volcano of Santurini, on the Island of Cyclades, Greece. Many persons were killed by the molten lava that ran down to the sea. Earthquakes at the same time injured many others.

CLEVER CATS

Dogs may be smart but cats are clever. If you don't believe this "ask the man who owns one."

In a popularity contest, although dogs would undoubtedly rank first as the best pets, cats would just as surely rank in a close second and the statement that the canine is the best household animal would probably be disputed by a great majority.

People are just as proud of their cats as they are of dogs. Dogs are generally considered valuable for their smartness, almost humaneness as companions, while the cat with all its feline smartness, is regarded as possessing more limited accomplishments.

Asking a few children which they like better, cats or dogs, it is found girls lean to the former and boys to the latter.

Both animals must have a jealous nature for they have little in common, but although going against tradition, there have been rare examples of friendship between cats and dogs.

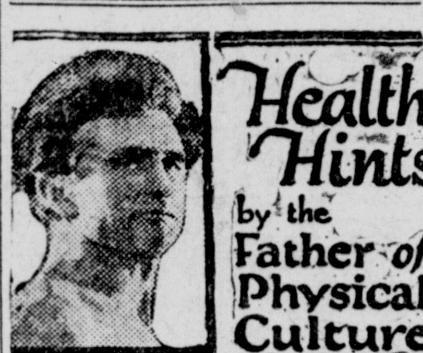

COLUMBUS WILL BE ON AIR MAIL ROUTE

COLUMBUS, Ohio, July 21.—Two airplanes each day soon will be carrying mail in and out of Columbus.

Columbus will be on the air mail route between Cleveland, Akron, Dayton, Cincinnati and Louisville.

Fifty five airplanes in all are carrying mail for Uncle Sam over the United States. With the exception of the 2669 stretch from New York to San Francisco, all of these services are maintained by contractors under government supervision.

Health Hints
by the Father of Physical Culture
BERNARD MACFADDEN

Jaundice or yellow Jaundice is an aggravated form of liver disease, characterized by the yellow hue of the skin and whites of the eyes, which condition is due to the clogging of the bile ducts, causing the bile to be absorbed by the blood instead of passing into the small intestine. In addition to this symptom, from which the disease derives its name, other signs are bilious, nausea, an offensive tongue, dry and parched lips, much belching, and vomiting. Jaundice is often present in diseases of the heart and infectious ailments. Or it may appear in a simple form uncomplicated with other maladies. In the latter case it is generally due to inflammation of the bile duct with inflammatory catarrh of the small intestine.

As a rule the symptoms of the disease in its simple form disappear in a few days. They may, however, persist for months. In this case some other and more serious trouble is the cause of their so doing.

The treatment of the disease differs very materially—depending upon whether it manifests itself in an acute or chronic form. The treatment of the chronic symptoms depends upon the blood-purifying and vitality-building process, while the treatment of acute symptoms consists of arousing to the greatest possible degree of immediate activity the blood-purifying organs.

In treating the acute symptoms, I would first advise the drinking of a copious quantity of hot water. It would be to advantage to drink as much of this hot water as possible within the first two or three hours of beginning treatment. In many instances this may induce vomiting, but this should not worry the patient in the least; in fact, vomiting is often of advantage. The hot water drinking should be continued, and very often it alone will bring about the desired cure.

In many instances there is inactivity of the alimentary canal, and under such circumstances the use of the full enema once each day while the acute symptoms continue is advised. If the patient is feverish, this enema should be cool, otherwise it should be warm. Absolutely no food of any kind should be taken while the acute symptoms continue.

FANNING WITH ARRELL

NEW YORK, July 21.—Form shown by young foreign athletes in the big French and English tennis and golf championships brought witnesses back with a distinct warning to America—"Look out and get busy!"

The long continuation of successes that have been scored since the war by American athletes in international competitions and the possession of such stars as Bobby Jones, Bill Tilden, Bill Johnston, Vinnie Richards, Helen Wills and Glenna Collett have caused American athletics to doze into a trance of false security.

With the exception of Bobby Jones, who need fear no golf player, in the world as long as he maintains his present game, the United States hasn't a single outstanding athlete in these sports who is not in acute danger of a foreign rival.

Frequent mention has been made recently of the strength of the French Davis Cup team. Rene Lacoste, Jean Borotra, Henri Cochet, Paul Foret and Jacques Brugnon are not only a team that will be a decided threat for the cup but they are individuals, the first three of which have a game at present good enough to beat Tilden if he proves this season not to be the super-player of two years ago.

Borotra apparently has recovered from an injured back he suffered during the winter as there was no indication of physical disability in his match against Howard Kinsey when he won the Wimbledon tennis title.

There is no disposition to predict that the men's national championship at Germantown will be a three-out-of-four French affair as it was at Wimbledon and in Paris. The draw will have much to say about that. If those four or five Frenchmen should be scattered around in the four sections, however, it will take all the best tennis of Tilden, Johnston and Richards to subdue them.

Helen Wills, who until this season, was looked upon as the only rival of Mlle. Suzanne Lenglen and a sure world's champion of the future has others on her hands now.

Senorita d'Alvarez, the Spanish champion and Mlle. Katinka Bouman, the Holland champion, who may be seen at Forest Hills are two prospects just as good as the American champion was two years ago. They haven't quite as much pace and experience as Miss Wills but they have more strokes, better execution and much more speed.

The effects of the operation she was forced to undergo in Paris may handicap Miss Wills but on the other hand she may be a better player as she had been handicapped for a long time before the

"Hot Foot" by Officer Restores Hearing and Voice of War Vet
